Description:

With the 964 Carrera RS, Porsche brought back the legendary RS letters at the 1991 Geneva Motor Show – deliberately reminiscent of the 911 2.7 RS from the early 1970s. What at first view appeared to be a simple 964 rear-wheel drive car was, on closer inspection, a lightweight model with an aluminium bonnet and magnesium rims.

The model offered here was delivered in Germany and sold to Spain in 2005. Around 10 years ago, the vehicle returned to Germany, where it has been owned by its current owner ever since.

With just 88,100 km, the RS is in a good condition.

The original on-board folder with service booklet is available. During the restoration of the rear side panel, the vehicle was repainted in accordance with the available photographic documentation.

An authentic Carrera RS in a rare colour scheme – and with impressive performance. Due to it's limited production, a must have for any Porsche collection.
