AUTOMOBILE RARITÄTEN

Description:

The Porsche 911 T 2.4 from model year 1972 is part of a special transitional series within the classic F-model range — recognizable by the distinctive external oil filler flap on the right rear fender. This feature was only fitted in the 1972 model year, making this car a highly sought-after rarity among collectors.

Technically, the 911 T was powered by the long-stroke 2.4-liter engine with 130 hp, offering strong performance for its time and still providing a dynamic, purist driving experience today.

This particular vehicle impresses with its especially attractive Platinum Metallic color paired with black leather upholstery. According to the Porsche delivery confirmation, the car was originally delivered to Culver City, California in 1972 and imported to Germany in 2004.

The vehicle history is fully documented, including all relevant service and maintenance work. Over the years, engine and gearbox have been professionally overhauled, along with other technical work carried out to preserve and optimize the car. The mileage is fully traceable.

A rare opportunity to acquire a well-preserved example of the legendary “Ölklappe” model.

Engine: 2.4L 6-cylinder boxer engine

Equipment: 15“ – Fuchs wheels
