Description:

The SL series R 107 was introduced in 1971 as the successor to the Pagoda and was style-defining for Mercedes-Benz design of the 1970s. The 560 engine was the highest level of motorization and was produced exclusively for the export market.

This example was delivered to the USA in 1989 and came to Germany in 2018. With a mileage of 57,667 km, the SL presents itself in a very well-maintained overall condition with an attractive color combination of Rauch Silver Metallic and Champignon leather, complemented by a dark brown fabric soft top. The original documentation including service booklet is present, as well as a valuation report from 2020. The vehicle was recently technically overhauled, resulting in a very appealing overall condition.

A well-maintained classic in an attractive color combination – ideal for all Mercedes-Benz enthusiasts.
