Description:

The Porsche 924 Carrera GT was developed in 1980 as a homologation model for international motorsport and is today regarded as one of the rarest transaxle models produced by Porsche. Its 2.0-liter turbocharged engine producing 210 hp, widened wheel arches, distinctive NACA duct in the bonnet, and fixed rear spoiler give the car an uncompromising motorsport character. Thanks to its transaxle layout, the Carrera GT offers balanced weight distribution and precise handling.

With a total production of approximately 400 examples, it is now a highly sought-after collector's car.

The vehicle offered here was originally delivered in Germany. Finished in its classic color combination, it presents in well-preserved overall condition with a total mileage of only 125,903 km. The original owner's wallet, including the service booklet comes with the car. The car recently underwent an extensive service

Engine: 4-cylinder turbocharged engine, 1,984 cc, 210 hp
